

Membership Fees Proposal 2021

IGLYO appreciates that 2020 has been a challenging year for many organisations and understands that increased expenses can add additional pressure. IGLYO's membership fees proposal, therefore, has been designed with this in mind, with no increase being added to the bottom membership level and only modest increases to the next three levels. IGLYO also reminds all members that it is possible to apply for a one-year fee waiver, if you are unable to cover membership costs.

The main reasons for the following proposal are set out below:

- An increase in membership fees has not been approved by the network for four years. If this continues IGLYO will need to carry out a more in-depth consultation with members to ensure that increased costs are reflected in the membership fees in a way that members will support future proposals
- Membership fees and the AMC organisational contribution are the only two regular sources of unrestricted income for the organisation, and as IGLYO continues to grow, so does the need for its financial reserve to ensure the organisation remains financially robust
- As there will be no physical AMC in 2020, IGLYO will not collect organisational contributions from participants, which greatly lowers the amount of unrestricted income in 2020
- IGLYO covers at least 90% of all participation costs for members to attend events and trainings, so even if an organisation on the highest level attends just one event, the participation costs covered by IGLYO are higher than the annual membership fees
- More than 50% of IGLYO's members fall into the first four levels, so more substantial increases to the higher levels is necessary to subsidise participation of all members
